The Property Industry Foundation is a non-profit charity, not aligned to any religious or political group, whose sole task is to unite all companies and associations in the property industry by providing a network and philanthropic facility with the aim of helping "at risk" young people.

We understand that there are 15,000 street children in Australia and up to 100,000 at risk young people in our community. The future of many of these lonely, alienated and isolated children depends on the Property Industry Foundation.

Contributions from the 2007 Annual Charity Ball will support the positive work of Open Family Australia.

Open Family Australia is a community organisation working to improve the well being and self worth of alienated young people. Their street outreach work provides a unique and highly effective support network assisting hard-to-reach adolescents who live on our streets.
